Dental implant treatments can change your life. With the same routine care you would give natural teeth, they can be expected to last for the rest of your life. Ask your dental professional for personalized and detailed care instructions.

- Following surgery, go easy on your new implants by not disturbing the wound, eating soft foods and getting some rest. You can return to normal activities within a day or two, but your dentist may recommend a softer diet for a few weeks.
- Good oral hygiene is essential to healing. Brush your teeth carefully with a soft toothbrush after every meal, particularly after breakfast and before bedtime.
- Follow the advice of your dental professional when it comes to regular checkups and professional teeth cleaning after your implant treatment.
